The 12 Horsemanship Touchstones:

1. Horse psychology and philosophy - Using horse psychology has come naturally to all great horsemen. It was also their philosophy - to use communication, understanding, and horse psychology
2. Savvy and Safe - How to stay safe, and just as importantly, how to keep others safe, and keep horses safe.
3. Horsenality - Every great horseman has recognized that horses have their own unique "Horsenalties" based on innate characteristics, learned behavior, environmental influences, and spirit.
4. Calm, Connected and Responsive - How do we get our horses to be successful, to optimize their potential? Well, they need to be calm, connected, responsive, and supple. Great horsemen bring those qualities out in their horses.
5. Four Savvys - In order to become an effective, versatile, well-rounded partner for your horse, you need to develop your horse in four distinct areas, two of which take place on the ground, and two in the saddle: On Line, Liberty, FreeStyle, and Finesse.
6. Rapport, Respect, Impulsion, Flexion - Collection is the sum total of four components: rapport, respect, impulsion, and flexion.
7. Have more Fun - When we all got our first horses, we had dreams of the level of fun and gratification.
8. Ride In, Ride Out - In order to effectively ride outside the arena, with your horse totally under control, you must first develop your communication skills with your horse inside the arena. And when it comes to riding inside the arena, how do you make that interesting and not boring - for you or your horse?
9. Balance and Posture - No matter what your level of riding experience is, we will help you become an even more effective, natural rider
10. Principles to Purpose - You need a purpose to your horsemanship, a purpose gives it a meaning. When he understands the purpose, when there's a real point, that's when his heart and desire turn into exuberance.
11. Techniques - Every great horseman not only knows which tools and techniques support their goal of utilizing communication, understanding, and psychology, but also know which tools and techniques not to use, because they don't align with that goal.
12. Ages and Stages - To become a great horseman, you need to know how to interact with all horses, no matter their age or their stage of development - even if the horse falls squarely into the "challenging" category.
